

Leakage

- We all know Thames Water has a leakage problem. But did you know it is so bad that they leak almost twice as much as the industry average.
- They are making a big thing of the fact they plan to reduce leakage by 50% by 2050. (But then stop)
- The other water companies have also committed to halving leakage by 2050.
- This means Thames Water will take over 20 years to get to where other companies are now and still be the worst in the industry by 50%. It's not good enough.